

Matt Bickel, AIA, LEED AP

A 2001 graduate from North Dakota State University, Matt has spent his entire career at Wold Architects and Engineers. As a leader within Wold's government sector team, he has experience working on projects across the entire spectrum of municipal and government facility types. He is dedicated to helping Wold's clients find effective solutions that reflect the identity and values of the communities they serve. "I think the root of my interest in architecture lies in the fact that I enjoy helping people. In the public sector, I get to work with large groups with diverse backgrounds and perspectives to help them accomplish a common goal for their facilities. I love being a part of that process - something bigger than myself." Matt and his wife, Carolyn, have two active and talented teenagers that keep their lives busy. A sports enthusiast at heart, Matt has coached both of his kids and their teams in several sports. He has also been an active member of the Rotary Club of Palatine for the past 15 years.
